Horace Moremen Writes Letter Concerning School System.

Read Issue Proposed By Messrs. McFerran and Atherton Will Result in Great Good For Jefferson County.

When the Board of Education defeated Messrs. McFerran and Atherton in their endeavor to give the county at least one consolidated school it seemed like a calamity to the county, but it was not. This seeming defeat but added to Mr. McFerran's unselfish desire to benefit the children of the whole county and he proposed a county bond issue for Jefferson county and went to work unselfishly spending his time and money to accomplish this, but not content with this he wishes to include the children of the entire state in his plan for better schools and ultimately to get the schools of Kentucky so good that the whole country will be benefited. His plan does not force any district that now has ample facilities to tear down a house that is sufficient for the needs of a high school in each of the eight districts.

Any county in the state to be authorized by the coming legislature to issue bonds in a sum not to exceed $500,000, to put up a school building. Jefferson county will probably not have to issue bonds for a greater amount than $200,000 or $250,000 to put up all the houses it needs at the present time and it is estimated that the whole $500,000 should be needed and we had to pay 20 or 25 cents tax for the next thirty years, if we get the eight high schools we need at once, is it not better than to keep up the present outlay and present system and not have schools any better than we now have at the end of thirty years when the bond issue we can have the best possible at once?

Some of my neighbors insist the question is not "do you want more and better schools?" but "do you want increased taxes?" We are taxed now for schools and we do not get the goods. By the proposed bond issue we get the equipment as soon as practicable and get what we pay for, the very best. Our sons can learn farming and our daughters domestic science and be fitted to play their proper part in the battle of life and the children of the whole county put under the best school influence possible. No matter what it is, if it is worth anything to us we have to pay for it. Where we have good roads we are taxed for them. Under the old toll gate system we paid big prices for our roads and didn't have the roads. Under the present road system we shall soon have good roads all over the county and our expense for roads is much less than under the old system and we have more and better roads. By the bond issue proposed by Mr. McFerran, and to carry which he is spending his money and his time for the people—while in the start it may add some to our taxes, it will in the end be much cheaper and will result in more and better schools. It will be as much better than the present system as our road system now is better than the old toll gate system.

While on the tax question I will ask if a man owns a farm worth $10,000 and sells it to a man who does not pay a cent for it, but gives him notes for $10,000 for it, who should pay the taxes and why? Ought the two be taxed for $20,000?

Very truly yours,
HORACE W. MOREMEN.

CLEAN-UP DAY

Proposed By Commercial Club For Jeffersontown.

Mass Meeting of Citizens To Be Held on April 15—Club Working on Big Propositions.

The Jeffersontown Commercial Club held its regular monthly meeting Monday night. The president, W. J. Semolin, and a number of members were present and much business of importance to the citizens and property holders in this community was discussed.

E. R. Sprowl read several letters from John B. McFerran, who made many valuable suggestions to the club in regard to improving the community in various ways. A letter from Coleman C. Cartwright, suggesting a water system for Jeffersontown was read. Mr. Cartwright congratulated the citizens of the town for the improvements that have been made and for the progress that is now in evidence.

A letter from W. H. Gregory addressed to the president of the club in regard to the location of the home office of the Central National Life Insurance Company was read. This company, like the Citizens National Life, is seeking a desirable location in the country in order to avoid the taxes of the city, and it is the desire of Mr. Gregory that the citizens of Jeffersontown take this matter up with the company. The secretary of the Commercial Club was ordered to answer Mr. Gregory's letter and say to him that a suitable building site could be secured and that it is the opinion of the club that an exemption from taxation for a number of years could be secured from the town trustees.

Another question that is of vital concern to the citizens of the town was the calling of a mass meeting to plan for a general clean-up of the streets and alleys. J. C. Alcock, Chas. D. Tyler and Clarence Erdman were named on a committee to confer with Messrs. Theresa McDermott and Louise Owings, teachers in the public school, and arrange for the mass meeting, which has been called for Saturday afternoon, April 15, at 3 o'clock. At this meeting all plans and means for cleaning and beautifying the town will be discussed and final arrangements made. Good speakers will be secured, and everybody is invited to come and take part. It was suggested by the club that a certain day for several days, if necessary, be set aside as "cleaning day" and that all the citizens and friends, men, women and children, turn out on this day with wagons, shovels, rakes, hoes, etc., and give the old town the best cleaning that she has ever experienced. The property owners of the town are also requested to clean their property on this day, and the club has offered a prize of $5.00 to the best cleaned lot in the community. To complete it will be necessary that your names be given to J. C. Alcock, chairman of the clean-up committee. In the meantime get ready for the big mass meeting to be held at Bruce Hall on the 15th.

The club adjourned to meet again with the citizens in mass meeting.

Measles on Route 19—Possibility of Easter Weddings—Other News of General Interest.

St. Matthews, April 3.—Spring is here with its advantages and disadvantages; the most uncertain season of the year in regard to weather conditions, but the surest as to the amount of work to be done within and without. Doesn't the spring sunshine show off dusty carpets, curtains, etc., to our dismay? In the twilight of winter we felt real clean, but let a little sunshine in and we realize what work is ahead of us.

Mr. Sam Castleman is remodeling his house bought in Chenoweth Avenue, which, when completed will be the most elegant structure in this vicinity. Money can accomplish wonders; and we who have it in small quantities enjoy second-hand things in proportion.

"It isn't just the pinch and pang That tries our spirits on; It's seeing what the others have, And knowing that they know." When the water pipes are in operation (which will be in the near future) we will have water in our houses like city folks, then St. Matthews will be on equal footing with Louisville.

Mrs. J. L. Holman, who has been on a visit to her mother, Mrs. J. E. Monday, in Kansas city, has returned home.

Measles, which is no respecter of persons, is raging along route 19. Mr. Will Herr's whole family have been stricken, beginning with Daddy, down to the youngest child, a new case each week; the worst is about over, but the tedious convalescing is to be endured for several weeks longer.

Mrs. Hewitt Simcoe is improving slowly, after a two weeks' illness.

Mr. John Reiss is still critically ill. He has been in a serious condition for several weeks. We extend our sympathy to his family in this trial. Mr. Reiss has lived at Fry's Hill many years and is beloved by friends and neighbors.

Listen for some "Easter Weddings." No names or showers yet, for these modest country maidens cannot bear the notoriety of blaring engagements before the world six months ahead, like society folk.

The stork left St. Matthews for a trip up the rural route, bringing to Mrs. Theodore Lentz a daughter and to Mrs. John C. Haberlin a son. Both infants arrived in the equinoctial storm.

Named For Jefferson County By Fiscal Court.

Lloyd W. Gates, Attorney, Given Place Over Lawrence B. Waters, Who Has Served Twenty Four Years.

Lloyd W. Gates, of Middletown, was elected Treasurer of Jefferson county Tuesday morning by a vote of five to four in the Fiscal Court. Lawrence B. Waters, the defeated candidate, has been Treasurer of the county for twenty-four years. The vote as cast is as follows:

For Gates—Magistrates Wheeler, Vogt, Gifford, Berry and County Judge Weissinger.

For Waters—Magistrates Dorsey, Robb, Hollis and Bucher.

Mr. Bates is a well known attorney, and his many warm friends were glad of his success in winning the appointment. He is thoroughly qualified to fill the position, which pays $2,500 a year. Mr. Gates served the county one term as Representative and made an enviable record.

NO LAW

For Anchorage Town Board's Action in Levying Tax.

Graded School Election Called For May 13—Middletown and Others Will Probably Do Likewise.

In the case of Walter S. Forrester, a taxpayer in Anchorage, against the Board of Trustees of that town, Judge Bingham handed down a decision Tuesday in which he decides that the trustees acted without authority on March 10 when they ordered a levy of 70 cents on the $100 worth of taxable property, 50 cents of which was to be used for general purposes. The case was an agreed one and was for the purpose of testing the validity of the board's action.

After the Town Board had passed an ordinance making the levy there was doubt as to its validity, and preparation was made to petition the County Judge to call an election in Anchorage so that a vote might be taken on the question of fixing the proposed levy of twenty cents for the establishment of a graded school. Judge Weissinger has ordered an election for May 13.

Judge Bingham said the question the Board had the power to fix a levy in excess of 50 cents, or if a vote of the people must be taken to validate the levy above that figure. He said the town charter empowered the Board to fix a tax rate for general and school purposes not exceeding 50 cents, and that there is no provision under the new Constitution or statutes for a specific levy for school purposes by the Board of Trustees or for any levy in excess of 50 cents.

The citizens of Middletown have asked for an election upon the graded school question, and it is probable that it will be held on the same day that the Anchorage election is held. It is also reported that several other school districts in the county will vote on the graded school question.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Yann are also rejoicing, for they are the recipients of a daughter—Marie Wilhelmina.

Mrs. Dr. H. P. Stivers and children, Catherine and Porter, attended a birthday party given by Mrs. W. Weber in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Grace Weber's anniversary at her home in Louisville.

A delightful soiree was given to a number of friends recently by Miss Elsie Kramer at her pretty home in Frederick Lane, the guests having an unusually pleasant evening.

One of the most inimitable and jovial of masquerades was given to Miss Margaret Henn at her home, in Meyer's lane, on the evening of April 1, by her cousin, Miss Freda Schneider, the event being Miss Margaret's sweet sixteen birthday anniversary. She was thoroughly prepared for any surprise, but when the jolly masqueraders gathered at her home, all costumed in various primitive fashions she was very much surprised indeed. She was the recipient of many pretty mementoes, and a number of prettily decorated cakes. Dancing, games and music were the features of the evening, after the unmasking refreshments were served, and at a late hour the guests departed for their respective homes, wishing Miss Margaret many returns of the day. Invitations were issued to and accepted by the following: Misses Alvin Balke, Alma Delling, Helen Schneider, of Hike's Point, Lala Yann, Elsie Kramer, Edna Krauth, Emma Graf, Sophia Hahn, Mary Kaelin, Amelia Yann, Minnie Hill, Rose Marsh, of Louisville, Theresa Diemer, Ida Belle Kaiser, Minnie Balke, Lena Diemer, Freda Schneider, Lala Hoock; Messrs. Fine Hog Sold.

Editor Jeffersonian: We wish to report the sale of the prize winning Duroc Jersey Boar, Crescent C. No. 28555, to Mr. L. F. A. Water, of Bangor, Wisconsin, for $100.00.

This boar was a winner in his class at Kentucky State Fair last fall and is one of the best boars we have seen. We raised this boar and had expected to use him in our herd, but we sold him, realizing that shipping a hog as good as he was into new territory would bring us more business. We feel that this purchaser has one of the best boars that ever left Kentucky and we know that he will make good for his purchaser as he expects to place him at the head of his prominent herd.

Wishing you success and thanking you for past favors, we beg to remain, Yours truly,
WHEELER & OWINGS.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

LONG LOST BROTHER

Burdine Emmons Killed—Narrow Escape For H. S. Tucker at Tucker Station.

A serious accident occurred at the quarry of the Jefferson County Stone Company, at Tucker, Thursday afternoon about 5:15, by the falling of a large derrick, which was used in hoisting rock to the crusher. Burdine Emmons, age 28 years, who was operating the derrick, was struck by the falling boom and killed instantly, his neck being broken. He had not a moment's warning of his danger. He had been operating the derrick about three weeks, and understood handling it all right; but in some way the machinery became unmanageable and before the danger could be realized the entire derrick had fallen. Mr. Emmons had been employed for about four years, and was a faithful workman. He is survived by a wife, who was Miss Mamie Master, his father and mother, four brothers and one sister, Mrs. Powell. The funeral was held Saturday at the Jefferson County Christian church, after which the interment took place in the Jefferson cemetery.

Mr. Homer S. Tucker, superintendent of the quarry, had a very narrow escape. He was standing near, and received a glancing blow on the head; however, the wound received was not of a serious nature. John Grogan, engineer of the plant, was missed by the falling pole only one foot, he having seen the danger and stepped back. The machinery was damaged to the extent of about three hundred dollars.

This is the first serious accident that has occurred in the twenty years that the quarry has been in operation.

Of Interest To Farmers.

W. B. and J. H. Dale, who own farms near Shelbyville, lost two barns by fire recently. The buildings were valued at $3,000, with no insurance. A prize winning Shorthorn bull, Orange Victory, valued at $750.00 was fatally burned. The animal was insured for $400.

Start asparagus beds, either from seeds or plants. Almost any seedsmen's catalogue will tell how it is done. Asparagus is not grown enough by the home gardener. Set out a bed this spring.

Green cut bone should be fed to fowls fresh and sweet; otherwise it is likely to cause bowel trouble. Bone or any form of meat will loosen the bowels of hens when fed in this way, and therefore the first feedings should be small.

Save all the wood ashes and use around fruit trees as a fertilizer. Wood ashes are especially good for such trees, and they will benefit all fruit trees and vines. In using them as a fertilizer do not place them against the trunk of the tree, since the strong alkali will spoil the bark. Scatter them thinly upon the soil over a circle as big as the top of the tree. The feeding roots run out further than the longest branch of the tree.

After a determined fight on the part of fifty farmers the forest fire that raged for two days at Slim Island, near Bowling Green, Ky., was finally quenched. About 500 acres of forest timber and much fencing was destroyed.

Of Coleman Shanks, of Satooville, Found After Separation of Forty Years.

Mr. Coleman Shanks, of near Satooville, received a letter from a brother, Newton Shanks, of Nebraska, who he thought had been dead for forty years.

Newton Shanks went off with a company of surveyors to the Indian Territory during the Civil War and took up a tract of land in that place. The Indians were very quarrelsome neighbors, so he left there and went to Ohio; lived there a few years and was married during that time. From Ohio he went to Nebraska. He has a wife and five children, all of whom are grown. He is thinking of coming back to visit his family and friends this fall, in company with his son.

An Important Question.

Hasn't it occurred to you that if it wouldn't pay you to read the ads there would, in consequence, soon be no ads for you to read? For no ad pays a merchant unless it pays the person to whom it is addressed—that's one of these inescapable mutual-interest laws of life.

WHERE I FOUND HER

By WILLIAM R. KING

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

What tragedies, what joys, are constantly being enacted in a great city! And the ups and downs there are! Walk along an important thoroughfare and suddenly you come upon a wedding party just entering or just coming out of a church. Proceed a little farther and you see a crowd gathered about an auto. A child has been run over and killed. Still farther you meet starving mother with a sickly babe in her arms. A nurse trundling a child dressed in embroidered and lace garments turns the perambulator for fear her charge will be contaminated.

One bright moonlight night I was walking over a bridge. The scene was pleasing, and I paused and leaned over the rail to enjoy it. "How fine it is," I remarked to myself, "to live in a city! By day there is the excitement of people and vehicles passing and repassing, the hum of business and pleasure, by night myriads of lights, with occasionally the one great night lamp of heaven to illumine the whole."

Suddenly to my left down on the water I heard a splash. A moment later a human figure came to the surface and went down again. A boat shot under an arch, and a man in it dived and brought up a woman, and the two were hauled into the boat. A policeman ordered the boatman to pull ashore. While they were doing so I went to where he was standing.

"What were you doing?" asked the policeman of the girl, who by this time showed signs of life.

"I wanted to die. Why didn't you let me alone?"

"Why the matter?"

"No home, nothing to do to earn a living, tired and heart sick."

"Well, you'll have to come along with me to answer to a charge of suicide."

"Police man," I said, "will you let me provide a carriage?"

"I can call the patrol wagon."

An empty carriage was passing. I hailed it, and the policeman, the girl and I got in and were driven to the police station.

I must pause here in my story to tell what I afterward learned of the girl's history. Some twenty years before our passing up one of the fashionable streets of the city on a certain day and hour would have been a party emerging from a church. A young bride and groom were starting in life with every prospect of happiness. The groom's father was head of a large business, and the son-in-law had made a fortune. A partner on the day of his marriage. A little girl was born to the couple, and she was taken to church bundled in embroidered and lace garments like the child in the perambulator I have referred to, that she might be baptized. Then in a handsome stone residence there was a christening feast, with a millionaire for godfather.

That was the year before the great panic of '73, when one morning it was announced that a great business house had failed and down went the other concerns like card houses. The father and son of this story fell with the rest, the father dying of disappointment and wounded pride. The clothing of the baby girl from that moment began to show plain, then dingy. Her father died, and her mother lived in want. The child grew to womanhood with no remembrance of her baby clothes. When her hair arose the sun of her family set. Then her mother died. The girl went from place to place begging for a situation, but nobody wanted her. Then one night she stood on the bridge. The waters below said, "Come, I will give you rest."

The morning after the attempted suicide I went to the room where the good and the bad, the unfortunate and the unregenerate, were brought up before a magistrate. In her turn, the girl was led in and placed in the dock. She had no defense. She simply said that she had got discouraged, and, passing over the bridge on her way to her dingy room which she had been notified she must leave on the morrow, she had looked out on the brilliant scene, then down on the water, and she could not resist the call to oblivion. The downward slide in life, though it had marred, had not destroyed her comeliness. There was evidence of an inherited refinement both in person and bearing.

Suddenly a member of the police court arose and said that there was a young man present who would marry the girl if she were willing. He was produced. The girl looked at him, then languidly gave her consent. What could she do?

"Judge," I said, rising, "if you will send the girl to some home where she will be protected I will interest myself in her."

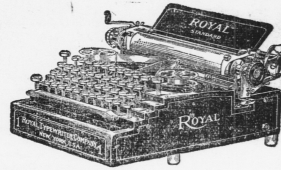

The judge asked the girl which plan she would prefer, and she chose my plan. She was sent to a home for indigent girls, and some afterward I called upon the matron and got her charge's story as I have given it here.

I looked up a few of those who had known her parents, but found there was no one to take an interest in her. Some were dead, some were very poor, and the children of those who had kept in touch with the upper stratum had no use for the children of those who had gone down. What was to be done for her I must do myself. I followed the example of the young man who had offered to marry her. I could do nothing for her in any other way. She consented, not languidly, as she had done with the other, but gladly.

SMILE.

SMILE when luck is breaking wrong. Chant a snatch or two of song. Cheerfulness will keep you strong. Where discontent will fail. You're not the hardest lot. Make the most of what you've got. Smile a bit, for kicking's not A thing that will avail.

SMILE though dark and long the day. Knowing it's the only way. You can win out in the fray. And conquer adverse luck With dreams. If you wear a smile of cheer, Push ahead and persevere. Riding rough shod over fear. And showing grit and pluck.

LET the other fellow frown. Who admits that he is down. Earth seems safer with a grin. But smile and life's worth while. Laughter makes the heart beat young. The pessimist will pine. But you can be a man among Men if you only smile.

IN A SNOWSTORM.

THE evanescent wonder of the snow Is round about us, and as in a cloud. A vestiture inviolate, we walk With dreams. Earth seems safer with a grin. But smile and life's worth while. Laughter makes the heart beat young. The pessimist will pine. But you can be a man among Men if you only smile.

A colossal world. Even the brist' throut Of the rapit brook is like a pulse beat faint. The wood, white architrave on architrave, Is as a temple where the lips of prayer Tremble upon the verge of utterance. If the currant and gooseberry bushes are troubled with the leaf eating worm which so often plays havoc with them the trouble may be remedied by sprinkling the bushes with a solution made by mixing one teaspoonful of paris green in ten or twelve quarts of water and applying with a common sprinker or hand sprayer. If the worms should make a second attack when the fruit is partly formed powdered hellebore may be used in place of the arsenical spray, being mixed with an equal weight of slaked lime and sprinkled on the leaves through pieces of burlap when the dew is on.

BIG FIRES

Do Great Damage in Jefferson County.

Lightning Sets Fire to Barn of Leonard Silvers—Thirty Tons of Hay Destroyed—Fire Near Eastwood.

Times: While rescuing stock from their burning barn, which was struck by lightning and destroyed by fire shortly after 5 o'clock Monday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Silvers were kicked by the frightened animals and injured. Their wounds are not of a serious nature. Their home is near Sayona, of the Preston street road.

A fine horse and sow were killed by the bolt, which split the big new structure. Mr. and Mrs. Silvers were able to rescue a horse and a male before the flames drove them from the barn. Neighbors went to their aid, but the fire had gained such a headway that efforts to check it were unsuccessful and the bucket brigade turned its attention to saving surrounding property.

The barn was burned to the ground and two tons of hay, forty bushels of corn, a lot of harness and farming implements were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $3,000.

Thirty tons of hay were destroyed by fire when lightning struck an unusually large rack on the farm of P. H. Brown, near Lipp's Station, seven miles out on the Preston street road, at 5:15 o'clock Monday morning.

County patrolmen are investigating the origin of the fire which Saturday night destroyed the residence and outbuildings on the farm of James Simpson, a mile from Eastwood. It is believed that the buildings were fired by thieves who looted the house and outbuildings. Simpson left home Saturday morning to visit his son, James Simpson, Jr., near Tucker's Station. He left no fire in the house. The dogs chained to the house were released before the fire was discovered. But one piece of the burned structure has been found. The loss is estimated at $4,000 without insurance.

YOUNG GIRL RUNS A FARM.

Sixteen-year-old Edna L. Bittling is the youngest farmer in the United States and is considered one of the most expert students of agriculture in New Jersey. She has taken complete charge of Hillside farm, at Hurlington, N. J., a property owned by her uncle. The farmers of the state call her the girl wonder and admit that Hillside is one of the most prosperous farms in New Jersey.

Although Miss Bittling has only recently taken complete control, she has assisted her uncle for several years. Her father offered to pay the expenses of a college course, but the girl preferred farming to college life and insisted on helping her uncle.

While at school she passed her vacations with her uncle and soon was able to do the work of a man. She was not satisfied with the knowledge of the laborious part of the work, but took a deeper interest in agriculture and is now considered such an expert that farmers in the vicinity seek her advice.

It is an interesting story to watch a pretty girl, neatly dressed, giving orders to and overseeing the work of a corps of farm hands, some of whom have been engaged on farms for more than a quarter of a century.

"I wouldn't live in a city if I were given a fortune," declared the girl after she assumed control. "If city girls only knew how sweet country life is they would yearn for it. I intend to make farming my life work, as I think it is as important as life itself when it is properly managed."

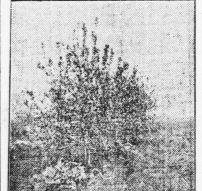

My parents do not wish me to become a farmer, but I prefer it to anything else and will visit a city only when absolutely necessary."

Miss Bittling has always been considered an unusually bright girl, and she maintained a high standard while attending school. When she declined to enter an agricultural college she said she could master farming from books without further instruction that she has succeeded even beyond her own expectations she admits and is delighted over the fact.

HEADING AN APPLE TREE.

Advice on Best Way to Get High Heads Reduced to Low Down Tops.

How to get the old, high headed apple trees reduced to low down tops is a matter of considerable interest. In case of a severe infestation of San Jose scale practically the whole top of the tree down to stubs, six or seven feet from the main trunk, has been cut off, although it is preferable to leave some branches if possible. Many small water sprouts will start, and these should be thinned out judiciously the following summer. Those left will ultimately form the new head.

It is practically impossible to destroy a severe infestation of the scale where the branches of the tree are left high up. In ordinary cases, however, where the infestation is little scale, such severe treatment is not advisable, but two or three years should be taken to accomplish this heading in. The first year only one-third to one-half of the main branches should be cut severely; that is, from six to twelve feet from where they fork. The rest of the top should be cut back to a limited extent. Water sprouts will grow on the large branches near where they fork from the trunk, and the best of these should be allowed to grow, the balance being thinned out the following summer. The next year this same process should be repeated, and so on until an entirely new top can be constructed, ready for business. This will be in from two to five years, according to the condition of the tree. Where such severe cutting back is practiced great care must be exercised in the treatment of the wounds by painting or ringing for the first few years; otherwise canker may set in and the branches decay. The above directions are for one wish to graft the top to a new variety conditions would have to be somewhat modified.

Root Celer. Not every one knows there is a variety of celery which makes a large root like a turnip and is an exceedingly fine salad vegetable.

The seed is sown and the plants are planted exactly the same as the better known varieties, but when the roots have grown large enough, which is by the middle of autumn, they are dug up as wanted, the tops are trimmed off and the bulbs are then cleaned and scraped and boiled tender. They are then sliced and laid in weak vinegar, to be served like pickles, or they may be served with cream or French dressing, the same as potato salad. The flavor is mild and delicious.

TOLSTOY WANTED BLOOD.

His Quarrel With Turgeneff and the Reconciliation That Followed.

Raymond recently in the Paris Figaro gives the following account of an early encounter between Tolstoy and Turgeneff, which shows the Russian sage in a different frame of mind from the one in which the world has since come to know him:

It was on the estate of his friend, the poet Fet, near Yasaya. Turgeneff was among the invited guests. The hostess inquired after his daughter, who was being reared in France. Turgeneff spoke highly of his English governess. "With a truly British exactitude," he said, "she requested me to fix the sum which my daughter might spend for charity. And now she teaches her pupil to mend the rugged clothes of the poor."

"And you consider that a good thing?" asked Tolstoy.

"Certainly," replied the other. "It brings the benefactors of the poor into contact with the persons whom he is helping."

"On my part, I think that a well dressed child who plays a hypocritical and theatrical farce."

"I must ask you not to speak in this way," explained Turgeneff, with menacing looks.

"Why should I not say what I am convinced is the truth?" remarked Tolstoy.

"You think, then, that I am educating my daughter badly," and, while Fet was interested, "If you've talked in that way I shall box your ears."

Then he left the room, begging his hosts to pardon his abrupt departure.

Tolstoy also went to the neighboring station he wrote to Turgeneff demanding an apology. He ordered plots and tried to provoke his rival to a duel. Turgeneff's answer, very dignified, brought the apology demanded by Tolstoy. He closed by saying that he thought it best that two men with such opposite tempers should henceforth break off all relations. Tolstoy, carried away by his anger it was in 1881, declined to be satisfied with such an answer. He felt that he had been gravely offended. He demanded reparation by arms. He therefore re-lit, who attempted to pacify him, succeeded only in drawing from him this vicious reply: "I beg of you henceforth not to write to me any more. I shall return your letters unopened, the same as I do with Turgeneff's." After these occurrences Turgeneff returned to France, where he passed the greater part of his time. Some months later, on December 20, 1881, he registered his violence. Refused with remorse, he sent Turgeneff a letter asking his pardon. "I find it exceedingly painful," he wrote, "to think that I have made an enemy of you."

Turgeneff forgave, as one may imagine, but the complete and definitive reconciliation took place much later.

OLD ENGLISH HOUSES.

In the Days of Wooden Huts, Thatched Roofs and Clay Floors.

The habitations of English common people for centuries consisted of a wooden hut of one room, with the fire built in the center. To this hut, if a man increased in family and wealth, a lean-to was added and later another and another, until the structure was a long, narrow, low building, with the beds of loose straw or straw beds with bolsters of the same laid on the floor or perhaps eventually shut in by a shelf and lodge like the berths of a ship or by a small closet.

The Saxon thane or knight built a more pretentious "hall," a large open room like the Roman atrium with a lofty roof thatched or covered with slates or wooden shingles. In the center of the hall clay floor burned great fires of dry wood whose thin acrid smoke escaped from openings in the roof, above the hearth or by the doors, windows and openings under the eaves of the thatch.

By day the "hearthmen" and visitors when not working or fighting sat on long benches on either side of the fire and, as John Hay puts it, "calmly drank and passed the evening at long boards placed on trestles, regaled themselves on some sort of porridge with fish and milk or meat and ale."

At night straw or rushes spread on the floor formed beds for the entire company in the earlier and ruder days, when the "baser sort" were glad to share their straw with the cows—Charles Windsor Hall in National Magazine.

The Cabal. The term "cabal" as applied to secret factions of any kind had its rise in England about 1697, being first applied to the cabinet of Charles II. and formed from the initials of the cabinet members' names—Lord Clifford, Lord Ashley, the Duke of Buckingham, Lord Arlington and the Duke of Lauderdale—C. A. B. A. L. Since that day it has been customary, in all English speaking lands at least, to apply the name to any secret conclave, especially in politics.

The Way She Saw It. "You must not mock people, Hazel. Once upon a time, the Bible says, a crowd of little children mocked a good man named Elijah, and two bears came out of the forest and killed forty-two of them."

Useless Telling. "You can always tell an Englishman," said the Briton proudly. "Of course you can," replied the Yankee, "but it doesn't do any good, because he knows it all." Philadelphia Ledger.

LINCOLN WAY

Discussed at Meeting Held at Mt. Washington Tuesday Evening—Another Meeting Saturday.

Citizens of Bardstown, Buechel and Mt. Washington met in a big mass meeting at the latter place Tuesday evening and urged the use of the Bardstown road as a part of Lincoln Boulevard, which is to run to the old Lincoln homestead and Mammoth Cave. Another way that is being worked for by enthusiastic supporters is the old L. & N. pike. A meeting will be held at Elizabethtown Saturday to urge this route to be taken.

Plans were taken at Mt. Washington meeting to improve the Bardstown road and put it in a first-class condition in order that the committee will select it when the time comes to take definite action. Citizens along the route will subscribe to a fund to be added to the Fiscal Court appropriations for the purpose of improving the pike.

Another matter decided upon at the conference, which was attended by several hundred enthusiastic citizens, was to show the directors of Louisville Railway Company that the proposed extension of the Fern Creek line isn't prohibitive, as has been declared. This "show-me" work will be in charge of a committee appointed some time ago by E. C. Boyd, president of the Buechel Commercial Club, which, with other organizations in adjoining towns, is making a merry for the railway company in promoting the extension. The conference last night induced the proposition sprung at the Buechel meeting to employ engineers to make a survey and estimate of the cost of this extension and show the directors of the railway company that the improvement will not cost more than $50,000 a mile, with an extra $50,000 for a bridge. While the railway people have made up an attempt to put an estimate mileage other than to declare it prohibitive, they have held that the bridge would cost $200,000.

DE LAVAL

AN HONEST CAPACITY

CREAM SEPARATOR

All separators are rated at so many pounds of whole-milk per hour. DE LAVAL machines range in capacity from 1350 to 135 pounds of whole-milk per hour, and the price depends largely upon capacity. We make the claim that under any and all conditions a DE LAVAL machine rated at 450 pounds capacity will skim as much whole-milk in an hour as any "would-be" competitive machine rated at 600 pounds per hour, and we have proved this statement so often in actual contests, that it has come to be an accepted fact by all well-informed dairymen. Every DE LAVAL separator is tested for capacity before it leaves the factory, and we guarantee every machine to separate its full rated capacity.

Before you buy a Cream Separator see and try a De Laval

Have one set up at your house and test it alongside of any other machine you like for capacity, cleanness of skimming and ease of operation. We don't ask you to buy a DE LAVAL upon "claims." We do ask you to be sure and give it a trial before you purchase any separator.

PLANNED BY A WIDOW

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

The widow Hunnewell had been a widow for four years, and she hadn't found much in life for her. She had had to split her own wood, build her own fires and milk her own cow. Every day she had missed Mr. Hunnewell, and when night came and the wind moaned and the rain fell and the shingles blew off the roof she wept and wished it were all over. At length Professor Doty arrived in the village. Not only that, but he arrived next door. He was a professor of natural history in a college, and he came to the village for his vacation. He was a man of sixty, tall and reserved and dignified. He gave every one a feel of awe. Mr. Hunnewell, on the contrary, had been short and fat and jolly, and people used to poke him in the ribs and joke with him. It was probably the contrast that caused the widow to fall in love at first sight. She leaned over the fence and introduced herself, and he approached and talked to her. He had found a tree toad hidden in the trunk of a locust tree, and he was glad to talk to some one about his find.

While the professor lectured the widow fell deeper in love and kept exclaiming: "Do tell" and "Oh, my soul!" She was an interested listener. She said she'd give anything to learn all about toads and bugs and grasshoppers and clams, and the professor was a bit flattered. If the woman next door had been a nice, loving woman she would have liked the widow over to make further acquaintance, but she was a different person. She said that widows had too much rope as it was and that Mrs. Hunnewell was always out of tea and coffee when a neighbor wanted to borrow. And the professor wasn't to be caught sight of so often either.

However, when Providence gets its machinery once started there are generally results. One night when the wind didn't mean and the shingles didn't rattle, but when it was moonlight and calm instead, the widow was awakened from her sleep by a bad dream. She thought herself surrounded by potato bugs and fighting for her life. The dream made such an impression that she got out of bed and looked out of the window. There was the explanation before her eyes. The professor had climbed the fence and was in her yard and down on hands and knees in the grass. He was on so close that it was easy to guess he had risen from his bed to look for crickets. Not a word did the widow say. She just got into bed and did some thinking. That thinking resulted in her sending, or the village constable next day, saying to him: "Mr. Zerkow, if the widow living all alone should have reason to believe that her house was about to be broken into, what should she do?"

"You mean if she saw a man dogging around in the yard?"
"Yes."
"Well, she might scream."

"Or she might throw something out of the window at him."
"Yes."
"Or she might take her life and her broomstick in hand and rush out and crack his skull!"
"I see."

"But if I was that woman I'd borrow a shotgun, load it with salt and fire on him from a window."
"And what would the salt do?"
"Keep him in bed for about a week. If there is anybody speaking around your house of nights I've got the gun and the salt, and you can protect yourself. The law will be on your side. Aim at his legs and let 'er go."

The widow took a couple of hours to think it over and then sent for the gun. She was taught how to fire it, and when the sun went down that evening she felt that events were going to happen before morning. What Professor Doty was looking for the night before was crickets. Their songs had floated into his open window at midnight and awoke him. He had climbed the fence into the next yard without a thought of trespass. He had got down on hands and knees and pawed around, but the crickets had ceased him. He would try again. If there had been any bells in the town they would have been striking 11 o'clock when the waiting, watching widow heard some one softly drop from the fence, then come into sight crawling over the grass. She saw him grab with this hand and the other and for me. I wish it was—stingy stories.

Of course the plan was to rush him into the house, call a doctor and keep him around for a week as an invalid. There would be romance in the salt and gratitude for the soups prepared for him, and those things might lead on and on. They didn't, however. The professor ceased; he swore; he wriggled; he said that any woman who would shoot a barrel of salt into an innocent man ought to be hanged, and as he made his way to the fence he called back:
"And my wife is coming here in the morning to stay for two weeks. Woman, keep your old crickets and be hanged to you!"
